

Dixie Franchise Revoked, Court Fight to Follow

West Memphis, Jan. 22 (AP) — Crittenden County went ahead today with a special election on the proposed 2.5 million dollar Dixie Downs racetrack although the track's franchise has been revoked by the Arkansas Racing Commission.

The opinion of 5,400 voters may give Dixie Downs, Inc., new life — or kill the proposed track for years to come.

Dixie Downs Secretary Edward Walker said a fight to nullify the commission action will be carried to court if Dixie Downs wins the election on whether the people want the track.

Track backers and the Anti-Race Track League, formed by county ministers, have showered nearly every voter with pamphlets, letters, personal visits and telephone calls.

"That means that a congressman has to open a house and keep his family in Washington. He has to close his house at home and give up whatever business he is engaged in."

Every American ought to read those paragraphs at least once a week for the rest of this generation — it might be the means of saving this foolish and bankrupt country that we call the United States.

The mountainous words of this modest and hard-working son of a famous American I read many things.

First, that the citizens themselves have broken faith with their ancestors, demanding reckless pledges by the government until office-holding has become a misery and the capital a financial shambles.

And second, what was started in arrogant ignorance now threatens to end in the collapse of national leadership — a leadership that has been impoverished of talent because a low citizenry was intolerant of anything that did not put money into its own private purse.

Yesterday's headline from Washington may well mean that the Forgotten Man has had his way until now this bids fare to become the Forgotten Country. The new federal budget, you read, will call for expenditures of 85 1/2 billion dollars — and unless there is a new and staggering tax increase on top of the two that have just been levied this describes an operating deficit of 14 1/2 billions.

How did we get into all this?

Young Will Rogers mourns "the old days."

It used to be that citizens were critical of office-seekers. They sent men to Washington to undo things they didn't like. But they've been ordering office-holders to do more and better things for so long that today when a scandal breaks they profess indignation — instead of recognizing it for retribution.

But justice is going to catch up with a crooked citizenry faster than it does with crooked federal employees.

The reason? If that big budget goes through congress without a paralyzing tax hike 14 1/2 billion phony dollars will be dumped into American trade and commerce. Prices will rise. Pensioners and poor folks will starve.

No one on earth ever beat an adding machine. Either you cover the government's deficit with taxes or you cover it in higher prices for the things you eat and wear.

And this is the point where a fatal tremor shakes the American ship of state — a wretched example of misgovernment's swift bankruptcy of what but two centuries ago was the earth's richest continent.

"The old days" — Will Rogers can say that again; and off-stage, there'll be an approving nod from father to son.

Says the U. S. Has Eye on Southwest

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Does the government have its eye on Arkansas and the Southwest for future expansion of defense plant facilities?

Rep. Jim Trimble (D-Ark.) thinks so.

In support of his belief he points President Truman and the Army Engineers on allocation of planning funds for waterways projects.

Included were planning funds for Table Rock Dam on the White River and for Keystone Dam on the Arkansas in Oklahoma. Both of these are power projects.

Trimble's reasoning is that since defense plants need huge amounts of power a logical first step in preparing for expansion of these industries is the construction of power facilities.

Bolstering this view is the fact that, under an act of Congress, the President had to certify that the projects getting planning funds were vital for national defense.

Thus the President, in effect, said these projects were vital for national defense. So, said Trimble, what other conclusion can be drawn than that the power from Table Rock and Keystone will be needed for future defense industries?

Also on the list was $147,000 of planning funds for the Arkansas River. Both Trimble and Rep. Brock Hays (D-Ark.) were inclined to believe this money will be used to plan bank stabilization projects on the river, rather than, for instance, the proposed Dardanelle Dam.

Dardanelle Dam would be a power project but Army Engineers have said that since Dardanelle does not include facilities for taking sediment out of the water, they prefer to build the Eufaula Dam, upstream in Oklahoma, first. Eufaula plans call for a sediment basin.

When he arrived at Jonesboro yesterday, he had $10 left.

Dean Moore said the slightly built young man is being quartered in the men's dormitory until school officials figure out what to do.

The dean said an effort would be made to get Khatiri a job if he could raise $300 to finance his first year's study.

Practically Every One Has a 'Schwa', and the Guy Next to You Usually Suffers for It

By SAUL PETT (For Hal Boyle)
New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—How's your schwa?

Oh, come on now. You've got a schwa. Truman has a schwa. So has Eisenhower. Like wise Churchill, Yogi Berra, Senator Taft, Shirley Temple, Frank Costello, everybody has a schwa because a schwa knows no barriers of sex, politics, class or geography.

Before you retire in confusion to the sports pages, let it be explained quickly what a schwa is.

In a discussion of pronunciation, the technology review of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says:

"Much of the variability in pronunciation of a given word arises from a strong tendency of some English vowel sounds to lose their individuality and to be replaced by a neutral sound which phoneticians call the 'schwa'."

You must understand, though, that the schwa is not the phonetic spelling of the sound made. It simply is a name given by the experts to the sound. It could just as easily have been called schmo or stinko.

So what is a schwa?

A schwa, says the technology review, is the sound "produced by expulsion of breath with the vocal organs in a generally relaxing position and decidedly resembles a grunt or groan."

The technology review adds: "The schwa occurs frequently in even the most precisely spoken English. For example, the vowels of 'above' can be pronounced in no other way. If the reader will say this word aloud, he can satisfy himself that both the A and the O are pronounced with the equivalent of a grunt."

Readers who try this simple test and do not come up with a grunt are earnestly advised to contact

Father of Quads Heads for Home

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—George Leonard Ponder, father of Arkansas' newly born quads, today headed for home and a visit with the infants after a five-day sightseeing tour to the nation's capital and New York City.

The 41-year-old unemployed farmer appeared on a television show in New York last week.

Yesterday he and Dr. M. Dewey Duncan, who delivered the quads, were luncheon guests of Rep. Boyd Tackett of Arkansas. Tackett introduced the famous father to several congressmen.

Ponder's wife, Mrs. Haggia Ponder, still is confined to a bed at their farm home. She will appear on a nation-wide broadcast from Chicago when she is able to make the trip.

"The quads—three boys and a girl—are in a Nashville, Ark., hospital."

Two-County Meet Attracts 125 Teachers

Approximately 125 teachers of Hempstead and Nevada Counties attended the meeting of the Hempstead County Teachers' Association last night (Monday) at 7:30 o'clock.

Guest speakers were Miss Amy Jean Greene, member of the faculty at Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelphia, and Allen Lynch, president of the Arkansas Education Association and superintendent of schools at Tyrone.

Urging teachers to participate actively in the AEA, Mr. Lynch spoke on the value of a strong professional organization. He stressed the importance of exercising the right of the ballot.

"The lack of using this privilege kills a democracy on any level," he declared.

He was introduced by Thurston Husey, Superintendent of Washington schools.

Joining hands and marching as a group was stressed in Mrs. Greene's talk on teaching as a profession.

"Arkansas boys and girls deserve superior schools. Educational levels can be raised through a strong organization and effective participation of teachers," she declared.

Miss Greene was introduced by Carlton Hasley, president of the local county association and principal of Springfield High School.

Mr. Hasley presided over the meeting. Mrs. F. J. Burroughs read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Elmer Brown, local county supervisor, and Bryan Husey, Nevada County supervisor, gave AEA membership reports of their respective counties.

Prior to the talks, the Hope High School Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Paul O'Neal, presented two numbers, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and "Were You There." Both Bridges was accompanist.

M. H. Peebles, superintendent of Saratoga schools, gave the invocation.

Pentecostal Meet Continues

The revival in progress at the First Pentecostal Church will continue, the Rev. H. P. Hudspeth, pastor, announced. Bringing messages nightly starting at 7:30 is Evangelist Ernest Jolly of Jonesboro, Ark.

Miss Georgena Rutledge of New Westminster, Canada, presents special vocal and violin music each night.

Economy Wave Follows U. S. Budget Request

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—The demand for economy in the United States followed today the release of President Truman's request for $84,444,000,000 for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Cuts of up to 14 billion dollars—enough to prevent a federal deficit next year—were demanded.

But there seemed little likelihood that such a goal—or even anything resembling it—would be attained.

Actually, Congress is limited in trimming the President's spending program since much of the contemplated outlay will come from money already allocated but not yet spent.

In new appropriations for the coming year, the President requested $84,200,000,000, some 16 billion less than he had sought for the present year. Congress cut this year's appropriations a little over four billion.

With national security programs taking 76 cents out of every dollar planned for 1953 spending, Congress may concentrate its economy drive on the old-line civilian agencies. Cuts of up to 10 per cent in civilian employment have been demanded by leading Republicans, who claim such a slash would save a billion dollars in the new year.

Defense spending also is likely to be curbed, but barring an unexpected turn for the better in world affairs, no deep cuts are probable.

There was one thing fairly certain about the fiscal outlook: The President isn't likely to get any of extra tax revenue he wants. His budget message called for $4,000,000,000 more taxes. Congress doesn't take kindly to tax increases in election years.

Without new taxes, the President predicted the government would go another $14,446,000,000 in the red next year, raising the national debt to $274,922,000,000 by June, 1953. The statutory debt limit is 275 billion, and only Congress can raise that.

The President called the budget "a heavy burden" but "the price of peace."

House Republican leaders didn't see it that way. They joined in a statement by Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts declaring the budget proved that "spending and more spending is the only answer the President has for any problem, large or small."

The GOP fiscal spokesman in the House, Rep. Taber of New York, called for a cut of "at least" five billion in new appropriations.

Senate Republican Leader Bridges of New Hampshire called the budget "shocking" and said Congress must "squeeze the water and waste" out of it.

Competition in Diamond Crater Looms

It was announced today by Talbot Field, Jr., president of the Diamond Preserve of the United States, Inc., an Arkansas Corporation engaged in the operation of a tourist attraction at Arkansas' Crater of Diamonds, 2 1/2 miles southeast of Murfreesboro, Ark., that the company has relinquished its lease on a small portion of the area in the Crater of Diamonds.

As spokesman for the tourist attraction company Mr. Field said: "Since the Diamond Preserve opened to the public on February 20th, 1951, it has operated a tourist attraction on the three properties comprising the crater area. They are: The former John Hudson property in which Mrs. Ethel P. Wilkinson of Logansport, Ind., is a majority owner, and it is by far the largest; the former M. M. Mauney property, now owned by Glenn L. Martin of Baltimore, Maryland; and the former Horace Benis property, now owned by Consolidated Diamond Corporation, a Missouri concern, of which Howard A. Miller of Little Rock is a substantial share holder."

"The Diamond Preserve company has terminated its lease on that small portion of the Crater area leased from the Consolidated Diamond Corporation but will continue to operate a tourist attraction."

There Is a Slave World in the U. S. Today as Vile and Ugly as Any Behind Curtain

(Editors note: This is the first of a series on "America's Slave-World of Narcotics" in which an alarming number of teenage children are being trapped. Associated Press writer Don Whitehead has dug into the files of the U. S. Narcotics Bureau and other sources in an effort to show how youths become addicts, how a bigsho peddler is trapped, and what addicts and experts think should be done to halt the traffic which takes about $102,000,000 a year from its victims.)

By DON WHITEHEAD
Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—There is a slave-world in the United States today which is as vile and degrading and brutal as any slave camp behind the Iron Curtain.

At least 50,000 men, women and children are prisoners in this twilight world. It has no morals. There are no laws except the laws of greed and selfishness. It promises nothing except a fleeting pleasure and then the pain and misery and suffering of the damned.

Each year an alarming number of people either wander in or are lured into this other world. Few find their way out. They may want to desperately. But they discovered they have neither the strength nor the will-power to leave once they enter.

It's the slave-world of narcotics, which in recent years has become a sinister pied-piper luring more and more young people into the worthless life of a "junkie"—a dope addict.

Right now this slave-world exists in such cities as New York, Chicago, Washington, D. C., Detroit, Cleveland, New Orleans and Philadelphia.

But it has no boundaries. It could become a part of your home town. Continued on Page Two

Iran Declines New British Minister

Tehran, Iran, Jan. 22 (AP)—Iran refused today to accept Robert Hankey as the new British ambassador to Tehran.

The British had submitted Hankey's appointment as a new move toward ending the bitter deadlock between the two countries over the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. holdings, which Iran nationalized last spring.

Hankey, 46, was to succeed Sir Francis Shepherd, who has been ambassador through all the oil troubles.

Hankey's name had been sent to Premier Mohammad Mossaddegh's government for approval under normal diplomatic procedure. His rejection — a real event in the world of diplomacy — seemed bound to worsen relations, already almost at the breaking point.

It was another resounding slap at Britain from the Iranians, who 10 days ago ordered all nine British consulates in the country closed. The British after strong protests, shut them down Sunday.

Shepherd, who had been appointed by the late defeated Labor government, was ordered home and told he would be assigned elsewhere shortly after Conservative Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden took office.

Hankey has had 25 years experience in the diplomatic service and has served in Cairo, Tehran, Madrid, Berlin, Warsaw and Bucharest. He was private secretary to Eden from 1933 to 1936, including part of Eden's first term as foreign secretary. He now is British minister to Hungary.

Syvelle Burke Named to Caddo Council Post

Syvelle Burke accepted the responsibilities of the office of Advancement of the Caddo Council, Ed Scheu, Council President made his choice known last week when the appointment was made. Mr. Scheu explained, "The Scout Advancement standards are high as are the ideals of Scouting. The Advancement Chairman must also have these same qualities that is why Mr. Burke was my choice."

The executive board of the council is expected to reconvene when it meets on Jan. 29th.

Mr. Burke was also appointed chairman of the District Advancement Committee earlier in the month by Teddy Jones, chairman of the district committee, and will be in charge of the District Court of Honor to be held in the City Auditorium on Feb. 11th.

Mr. Burke is very active in his communities interests. He is an active member of the Methodist Church, The Hope Kiwanis Club, the V.P. W., and an ardent scout worker.

Kiwanis 'Gift' Calf Missing From Rowe Farm

A registered Jersey heifer that was awarded Marshall Rowe of Washington by the Hope Kiwanis Club has disappeared from the calf pasture at the Rowe farm north of Washington.

The calf has a tattoo in its right ear. It was last seen Wednesday, January 16.

This is a quality registered heifer being carried as a 4-H Club demonstration.

All friends are asked to be on the lookout for this calf and advise the owner, County Agent, or Elmer Brown, Chairman of Kiwanis Club Calf Committee.

Message Fails to Keep Man From Trial

Arkansas City, Jan. 22 (AP)—Trial of alleged wife slayer Cecil Rice was postponed today. Circuit Judge Henry W. Smith said the case would be reset during the present term of court, which extends until August.

Judge Smith did not announce why the trial, which had been scheduled for today, was being continued. Presumably the postponement was ordered because the grand jury is investigating the strange case.

Smith also overruled a prosecution motion for a 30-day sanity test for Rice, a 36-year-old Dumas, Ark., ice plant operator. Rice's own attorneys resisted, the motion.

Rice is charged with first degree murder although his wife's body has not been found and there have been developments indicating she might be alive.

Rice was arrested Dec. 12 after telling officers that he thought he threw 32-year-old Agnes Rice into the Mississippi River while drunk the night before.

A telegram signed "Agnes" was sent to Rice from Dallas, Tex., Saturday. The telegram read: "I don't want to face people after what happened. I am working in Dallas and don't want to return to Dumas."

Yesterday, Ft. Worth police said they received a telegram signed "Agnes" and saying: "I am here in town."

Both Dallas and Fort Worth officers are without clues as to the sender.

Meanwhile, the Desha County Grand Jury began investigating the case.

Seven persons associated with Rice were called for questioning.

UN Negotiators Charge Military Grab to Chinese

Munsan, Korea, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Allies accused Communist truce negotiators today of making "an out and out grab for military advantage" in Korea and showing "ruthless disregard of the rights of the individual."

Rear Adm. F. Libby made the charge in again rejecting Red demands for "forced repatriation" of all prisoners of war.

"We again, tell you," Libby said, "that we are not going to give up our insistence upon" voluntary repatriation.

In a second subcommittee session, the Reds refused to ban armed reconstruction although the U. N. command offered to accept Communist wording on other terms for supervising a Korean armistice. That meeting lasted only 14 minutes.

No progress toward a truce was made by either subcommittee. But negotiators did take steps to safeguard prisoners of war from air attack. They agreed staff of fliers would start working out safeguards Wednesday.

Presumably this would require the Reds to tell the U. N. command exactly where their POW camps are situated and to mark them plainly. None is marked now. The U. N. command said its airmen have not been able to locate any.

Tuesday's agreement was the outgrowth of a Communist report last week that Allied bombs killed 20 Allied soldiers and wounded scores of others in a POW camp near Kungdang.

Both committees meet again at 11 a.m. Wednesday 8 p.m. Tuesday EST.

The 14-minute truce negotiation session was the subcommittee's longest this week.

Maj. Gen. Claude P. Feronald said the U. N. command would accept the wording of the Communist counterproposal submitted Jan. 9 if the Reds would write in a ban on reconstructing bombed-out airfields during a truce. This clause has been the only point of difference between the two sides since Jan. 9.

Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Tang said no.

There was no misunderstanding that his heart was in what he said, commented Brig. Gen. William P. Niekols, U. N. command spokesman.

Government Files Suit Against IBM

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—A government civil suit against the International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) was filed in federal court here yesterday in federal court here, charging IBM has unlawfully restrained and monopolized the tabulating industry in the United States in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

IBM issued a statement from its New York headquarters denying the government's charge.

More than 80 per cent of all tabulating business in this country, and 71 per cent of all tabulating machines used by the federal government are controlled by IBM, the complaint said.

The government accused IBM of hoarding new developments and inventions in the field, dividing territory and exchanging data with foreign manufacturers, and acquiring foreign patents that were potential competitors in America.

It also charged IBM keeps a tight hold on machines so users are dependent on IBM for service and repairs and obtain patent rights in the business machine fields so it can retaliate against any company threatening to enter the tabulating machine field.

IBM machines are not sold, the government said, but only leased to users under "burdensome and unchangeable restrictions."

Thomas J. Watson, IBM board chairman, stated last night that his firm "never employed any measures to eliminate or restrain competition" and that to call it a monopoly was to "disregard the facts."

He said there are numerous other makers of tabulating machines on the market and that the field is "highly competitive."

Would Limit President's Power

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Chairman McCarthy (D-Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee has introduced a resolution to limit the President's power to enter into executive agreements with other nations.

The resolution spoke of what it called "a present tendency" to use executive agreements in place of treaties which, under the constitution, are subject to ratification by a two-thirds majority in the Senate.

McCarthy's proposal would subject to the following limitations all executive or other agreements entered into by the President with foreign governments other than treaties submitted to the Senate:

1. They shall be of no force or effect until and unless published in full in the federal register.
2. They shall be subject to such legislative action as the Congress, "in the exercise of its constitutional powers, shall deem necessary and desirable."
3. They shall be deemed to terminate not later than six months after the end of the term of the President during whose tenure they were negotiated, unless extended by proclamation of the succeeding President.

calls over the past several weeks. The calls opened at 4 a. m. and closed at 6:30 p. m. The league thought broad strategy to turn out the vote.

The telephone committee was not to call every voter to remind him to cast a ballot. Those with no ready transportation to the polls got a five-mile ride from the league car pool.

Memphis prayers supporting the league started last night and ended at dawn. Presbyterians opened the meeting and a group of Baptists joined.

At one hour intervals, a new group took over. Prayer was offered by representatives of nearly every sect.

The Arkansas Racing Commission yesterday voted 3 to 1 to revoke the permit it had granted Dixie Downs on Nov. 15.

Commissioner Burton L. Leland of Van Buren cast the only vote against revocation. Commissioners J. H. Furell of Paragould and J. H. Furell of Paragould were absent and did not vote by proxy.

The commission's action came after a day-long public hearing called to re-examine qualifications of Robert J. Bollieu, one of the officials of Dixie Downs, and the financial standing of the enterprise.

The commission said, following a closed door session, that the revocation was made on "failure of Dixie Downs, Inc., to make a satisfactory showing of financial conditions to build and operate a track."

Gleim Walther, Little Rock attorney for Dixie Downs, said he would seek court action in Crittenden county to overturn the commission's revocation order.

The revocation came on action of a Crittenden County referendum on the proposed establishment of the track. The election was ordered by the commission in granting the non-revoked permit.

Bollieu spent most of yesterday afternoon testifying in defense of allegations that he was not financially qualified as an official of Dixie Downs.

Several letters of recommendation from residents of Kalamazoo, Mich., Bollieu's former home town, were introduced in evidence. There also were letters from Memphis and other cities.

He said that he had earned only about $2,000 a year since he under took the Dixie Downs promotion in 1940. But he added he had received about $12,000 from relatives during that time.

Bollieu acknowledged testimony by a State Revenue Department employee that there had been some overdrafts in his bank account in Memphis. But he said some of these occurred when expense money had not been transferred to his account from Dixie Downs as he had anticipated.

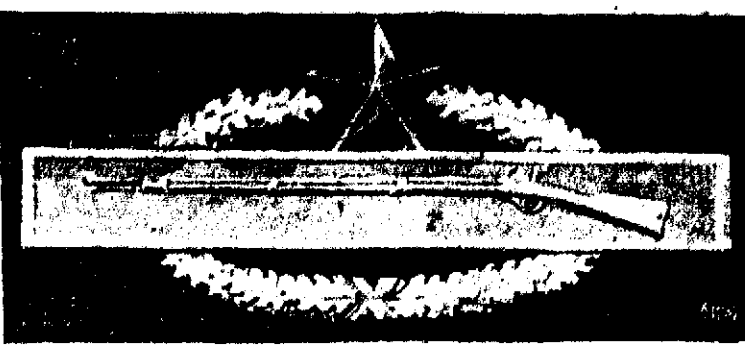

The commission heard testimony that Bollieu allegedly had disposed of a vehicle on which there was a lien.

Then Bollieu said all outstanding obligations in the transaction had been paid.

The commission had requested a detailed statement on Dixie Downs finances.

Walther introduced a letter from a Memphis certified public accountant firm which said there was not sufficient time to prepare such a statement to meet the commission deadline.

Gov. McMath, a bitter foe of the proposed track, said he was "gratified over the commission's action."

NEW STAR FOR DOUGHBOYS—The Army's Combat Infantrymen badge now has a star added, as above, to indicate that the wearer has earned it for the second time—in Korea in this instance. The blue and silver badge is given for satisfactory duty with an infantry regiment or smaller unit, while that unit is engaged in active combat. New regulations call for adding a star for each badge earned after the initial award.

They were photographed at the observance of the 28th anniversary of the death of Nikolai Lenin, father of Bolshevism. The chief speaker was Peter Pospelov, director of the Marx-Engels-Lenin Institute and former editor of Pravda, who predicted the complete collapse of capitalism and said nothing can halt the uprising of the people of Asia, the Middle East and Africa.

Published photographs of the official lineup at Soviet functions are closely watched by Western observers, who interpret the positions of the Politburo members with reference to Stalin as an indication of their current importance in the Kremlin.

Malenkov's place alongside Stalin in line out numerous strong indications in recent months he has been chosen as Stalin's successor. In all recent state photographs he has been in the honor position alongside Stalin or in the center when the premier was absent. The Moscow press earlier this month saluted Malenkov's 50th birthday with extravagant praise and fanfare comparable only to that given Stalin himself.

The placement of Molotov alongside Stalin, however, marked a sudden return to the limelight for that Politburo member, once considered by the West to be Stalin's heir but more recently viewed as a fading star. The last time he was photographed with the Politburo at a major celebration was last year's May Day observance. Molotov was fifth away from Stalin. Malenkov was in first place.

In the photograph, Stalin wore his generalissimo's uniform. Molotov was clad in a business suit form, often worn by Communist party officials.

Vishinsky Deserts UN Meeting

Paris, Jan. 22 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky leaves for Moscow tonight (3 p. m.) after taking part in the sixth session of the United Nations General Assembly.

He will travel by train and will go via Vienna and Prague.

The 68-year-old diplomat has been here since the current Assembly session began Nov. 6 and has followed a strenuous program of work.

The Assembly will not adjourn until early February but Vishinsky saw final action Saturday on the last item which he had planned to handle personally. This was his so-called peace program. The assembly rejected all points of his plan, except proposals on atomic control and disarmament, which were sent to the new U. N. disarmament commission for study.

Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik will head the delegation after Vishinsky's departure.

Malik today heard Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb reject the Soviet offer to stop vetoing the U. N. membership applications of such countries as Italy and Libya in return for Western agreement to let in a group of Russian satellites.

Jebb told the U. N. political committee there are "grave doubts" as to the suitability of the Soviet candidates for U. N. membership.

He said that the Soviet catchall list of states to be admitted was also unsatisfactory because it omitted the Republic of South Korea.

The British delegate charged that the Soviet veto, and that veto alone, is keeping applicants out of the United Nations.

He denied Russian claims that the West's refusal to support Sovieting but may direct the secretary of state's office to withdraw his name.

The presidential primary in Illinois is merely advisory and not binding on national convention delegates.

Petitions of candidacy also were entered yesterday for two U. S. senators, Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Brien McMahon of Connecticut, for the Democratic presidential preference primary. President Truman is not entered.

Fiery Jewish Leader Is Suspended

Jerusalem, Jan. 22 (AP)—Moslem Ben-Gurion, fiery one-time leader of Jewish guerrillas, last night ordered suspended for three months from membership in Israel's Knesset parliament—because he threatened the Knesset with violence during one of its debates.

All parties in Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's governing coalition voted to exclude him, passing the motion 36 to 47. The suspension contemplated the motion was "illegal and not based on law and the Constitution."

Ben-Gurion led the anti-British fight at Yaffa during the Jewish war of independence. He now heads the Herut party.

His supporters tried unsuccessfully to force a vote on the Knesset today, Jan. 7 with stone and tear gas during debate on a government proposal, since adopted, for Israel to deal directly with Germany on reparations for Jews dispersed by the Nazis.

let candidates was the root cause of the membership tangle.

The United States was reported yesterday under heavy pressure from certain other countries, particularly Italy, to accept the Soviet proposal to admit all the applicants except South Korea. The U. S., however, was said to be resisting firmly these urgings of the grounds membership should be based on the qualifications of each applicant rather than "What we have done." Jebb said "to withhold our support from those of the applicants whom we consider do not fulfill the condition for membership."

The states are Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Albania and Outer Mongolia.

Revenue Fraud Case About Ready for Jury

Hopkins, Jan. 22 (AP)—A Federal court jury of eleven men and one woman which will decide the guilt or innocence of Denis W. Delaney, ousted Internal Revenue collector for Massachusetts, today awaited instructions by Judge Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr.

The judge was expected to take about an hour interpreting the law in its relation to the case of Delaney, charged with falsifying satisfaction of tax liens and with accepting bribes.

Delaney, dismissed from his post last June 27 after seven years as collector originally was indicted on charges of falsifying satisfaction of tax liens totalling $180,497 in three counts, and with accepting $12,500 in bribes, six counts.

Judge Wyzanski acquitted Delaney of three of the bribery charges, reducing to $7,500 the amount of money the former collector is charged with having accepted for favors in tax cases.

The allegedly false tax liens: Samuel and Eva Merker $34,559.40; Merker Counter Company of Haverhill, Mass., $136,329; Morris Levitt $10,609. The falsification was alleged to have occurred Oct. 1, 1948.

The bribery counts charge Delaney with soliciting and taking bribes, with intent to have his official acts influenced from Daniel Friedman, a New York insurance salesman, in the tax cases of Maxwell Shapiro and the Maxwell Shapiro Co. of Boston, and the Massachusetts Steel Treating company of Woburn.

The government charged the bribe taking allegedly occurred from a period in 1949 through April, 1951.

In ten days of trial 33 witnesses testified and 98 exhibits were put into the record before Defense Counsel C. Keefe Hurley and Assistant U. S. Attorney General John H. Mitchell presented their final arguments yesterday.

Hurley said fees divided with Delaney by Friedman which both testified to were from insurance sales after the two men had agreed to become insurance partners.

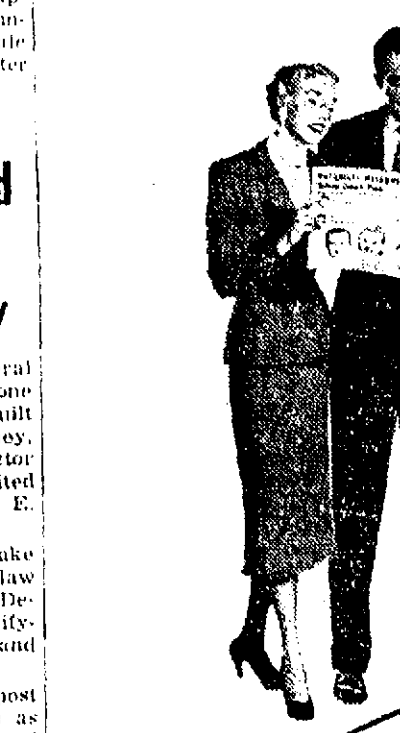

There Is

competition on the remaining crater area under lease.

"Although our company would have preferred to continue its lease of the Consolidated Diamond corporation's property so as to operate all three properties the number of visitors did not justify continuing the high rental payments. Many factors enter into the successful operation of such a unique attraction but most important to be considered are the economic ones of supply and demand."

"It is the understanding of our company that Consolidated Diamond corporation under the direction of Mr. Miller plans to continue the operation of a tourist attraction on its property formerly under lease to us. To Consolidated Diamond corporation and especially to Howard A. Miller, we extend our sincere best wishes for a pleasant and profitable tourist business. It has been proven over and over that competition is the life of trade."

"Our efforts have been directed toward presenting to the people everywhere that Arkansas has the second largest diamond bearing crater in the world, the only one in the northern hemisphere, and that the Arkansas diamonds are consistently harder, have greater luster, brilliance, and refraction properties than any other diamond in the world. On behalf of the owners of the diamond property, the people of Maricopa, Pinal, and Yuma counties, Arizona, it is the hope of our company that in the near future persons with sufficient capital and determination will be induced to undertake a large scale mining enterprise in the Crater of Diamonds."

Dust Storms Whipping Over Two States

By United Press

Dust storms brought darkness at noon to parts of Oklahoma and Texas today as wind-whipped snow ushered a fresh blast of winter into the Midwest, ending a brief period of welcome warmth.

The West Coast, clearing the damages of recent storms, was among the few spots in the nation which escaped a belt by bad weather. It lay lashed most Southern states.

Sharp temperature drops accompanied the southwesterly dust storms which skinned top soil and sent it spinning along at speeds up to 40 miles an hour. The dust cut visibility to less than 1,000 feet at Woodward, Okla., and five miles at Wichita Falls, Tex.

High winds swept a grass fire over 2,000 acres near Guyton, Okla., before flames from Guyton and Liberal, Kan., brought it under control.

Forecasters said the mercury would plunge about 30 degrees in some Midwest states in a deep freeze which came on the heels of the blizzards. Meantime, the snow continued to pile up in the Northern Plains states and other Midwest areas choking highways and grounding airplanes.

Weathermen said the storm and cold would creep eastward but were expected to weaken in severity before they reached the Atlantic Coast.

Midwest snows turned to rain for Southern states in the bad weather area which stretched down the central portion of the nation from Canada almost to the Gulf. Tennessee, Mississippi, Kentucky, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama all were drenched.

Four persons were killed near Huber, Ill., when two cars collided on an icy pavement. In Towerville, Ill., Larry Barringer, nine, was killed when his sled skidded under the wheels of a truck.

In Colorado, Gov. Dan Thornton termed "critical" the situation of 1,500 cattle stranded by heavy snowfall in the Gunnison area. The Army may be asked to provide snow weapons to rescue the herd, valued at $200,000.

Papers Give Up on British Romance

London, Jan. 21 (AP)—London newspapers declared over the weekend that Princess Margaret isn't going to marry the Earl of Dalkeith after all.

Last week the journals had the Earl halfway to the altar with King George's merry younger daughter. Yesterday most agreed they're just childhood friends.

Only one paper, the Empire News, held out for the romance. It said the earl might go along with the King and Queen and Margaret on their visit to South Africa in March.

Five Crewmen Survive Crash of Mercy Plane

Port Angeles, Wash. Jan. 21 (AP)—Five crewmen of a B-17 mercy plane yesterday survived the crash of their ship on an Olympic peninsula peak and a 1,300-foot plunge down the snow-covered slope.
Three other men, presumably thrown from the plane during its plunge, were listed as missing. A para-medical team of four pressed a search for them.
The four-engined search and rescue plane was returning from the scene of a British Columbia plane crash Saturday night. It clipped the top of 8,338-foot Tyler Peak in a blinding snowstorm.
The ship bounded over the peak and skidded through the snow down to the 5000-foot level. Search planes located the wreckage Sunday.
Only two of the survivors required hospitalization and they had only cuts and bruises. They were the pilot, Capt. Casimir F. Hybki, 31, of Tacoma, Wash., and the crew chief, Sgt. Carl E. Seurgall, 22, of Tillamook, Wash.
Capt. Hybki and Seurgall were thrown out together as the plane made its wild plunge. Three men "rode the wreckage all the way down."
The plane caught fire after the wreckage came to a stop. But the men had time to roll out sleeping bags and emergency equipment.
In the morning they lit flares and smoke bombs to attract rescuers. They also traced out in the snow the word, "land," followed by a large "P." Their meaning was "land a para-medical team."
A helicopter pilot, Lt. Cmdr. Gordon H. MacLane, made five trips through snow squalls to carry out survivors and carry in rescue crews.
The survivors had no idea what happened to the three missing men. But they said they could have been thrown out alive and be wandering on the other side of the mountain.
Farmer said I didn't see much of anything or anybody while the plane was sliding down the hill. I was thrown around quite a bit and didn't have time to look for anybody.
He added, "It's pretty rough about those other guys, though." The missing men are Capt. Stanley Lankiewicz Jr., the navigator, of Tacoma, Tech. Sgt. Alan S. Ball, the engineer, of Tacoma, and Sgt. John A. de Rath, radio operator from Stavanger, Norway.
The B-17 was returning from the crash of a Korean air lift plane Saturday at Sandspit, B. C.

New French Cabinet in Trouble

Paris, Jan. 21 (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure's new French cabinet, less than 24 hours old, headed into trouble today over recent bloody clashes between Nationalists and French police in Tunisia.
The cabinet of 10 Moderate and right wing ministers and secretaries of state, faces the National Assembly for the first time tomorrow when the 43-year-old Premier is expected to ask for a vote of confidence. He also will face a number of questions, many of them about Tunisia.
The most dangerous questions will come from the Socialist party. The Socialists voted to condemn Faure in office, but they are not in a position to maintain a firm

DOROTHY DIX

Card Playing

Dear Miss Dix: My husband and I have had quite a bit of discussion on a matter which we view quite differently. He likes to play cards threatening to desert him now because they dislike what happened in Tunisia.
A vote against the cabinet by the Socialist bloc, coupled with the inevitable opposition of the Communists and General Charles de Gaulle's followers, would topple Faure at once.
The Socialists disapprove of almost everything the French government is doing in Tunisia. They think France should negotiate with the independence-seeking Neo-Destour party. They dislike the arrest of the party's leaders last week and they have denounced the police firing on the demonstrators, more than a dozen of whom were killed.
Faure will have less trouble in parliament if yesterday's calm continues in Tunisia. After three days of Nationalist rioting throughout the N. African protectorate, only two minor incidents were reported yesterday and government preparations were eased.
The French, however, continued to put heavy pressure on the Bey, the nominal ruler of the protectorate, to recall the two Tunisian cabinet members now in Paris. They have asked the United Nations to intervene in their homeland.
Faure's new cabinet closely resembles the government of his predecessor, ex-premier Rene Ploven, who lost a vote of confidence two weeks ago. Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and Defense Minister Georges Bidault still hold those key posts.
When a U. S. government check for seven and a half billion dollars was issued in 1948 to balance Treasury books, it was believed to be the largest check ever issued.

stand on principle in the face of criticism. You are to be commended on having sufficient character to do exactly that, so if you cannot reconcile a game of cards with your conscience, let the cards go.
Dear Miss Dix: I have gone with a boy for two years. Not long ago one of his legs became paralyzed. Now he says I don't love him and am continually arguing with him. How can I bring back his love?
MARY L.
Answer: Before you worry too much about your friend's attitude how about your own? Are you really still in love with him, and ready to face the future with a full realization of what his handicap will mean? If you have any doubts about your own feelings for the boy, it's better to break with him now. If, however, you are convinced that you really love him, patience alone will win him for you. He feels now that the only emotion people can feel for him is pity. You must convince him otherwise, with such methods as you alone with a deep knowledge of his personality and character, can figure out.
Dear Miss Dix: My husband is 33 years old and I am 17. Is the difference in our ages the reason he acts so cold to me? He is always treating me like a child instead of a grownup. We live with his sister, and if anything comes up he discusses it with her instead of with me. We have been married two years.
R. A. C.
Answer: My dear, since you are still scarcely more than a child, it is reasonable to assume that a man twice your age finds it difficult to believe you're adult. Only you, by constantly striving to impress him of your maturity, can convince him to treat you as an equal. Sixteen years is a long time to spend at your age, but since you love your husband and are willing to make the effort, it will be accomplished.

Budget Due to Get a Good Working Over

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Practically everyone had a little peek at the national budget, which was to be unveiled to Congress shortly after noon today. And it was no secret the sight would be impressive.

Last Wednesday President Truman told Congress, in his report on the country's economic condition, the government's expenses next year would be over $10 billion dollars.

So it was a much the budget figure would be less. The budget in the President's formal request to Congress to vote the money needed to run the government another 12 months.

The President hands Congress the budget at this time every year. It contains his lengthy explanation why the money is needed, plus hundreds of pages of itemized tables showing where the money will go.

The budget fills a volume as big as the Manhattan telephone directory. And, as always, the government people began working on it as long ago as last summer. The President himself started working on it in September.

Since practically everyone owned a piece of the budget, through the taxes he pays, great consideration has to be given the public in the way information about the budget is released.

The public would get a thorough account of the budget, news agencies and radio chains were made to see the budget on all that moment when it was formally presented to Congress today.

Still, the President can't turn the budget over to newsmen before he hands it to Congress, so what was done this year is what is done every year.

On Friday copies of the budget were given newsmen with strict instructions that no details could be released until the formal presentation to Congress.

This gave them a whole week, and the President himself had a special conference with newsmen Saturday to answer their questions and write stories about the budget.

An early as Saturday morning the big news agencies began moving these stories to newspapers everywhere, with the understanding none could be released until after noon today.

In this way, when the newspapers came out on the street with stories about the budget, and radio commentators began talking about it, they are able to present a fairly complete picture.

As early as last August the heads of the various government divisions, agencies, bureaus and departments had to make their plans for the year.

They turned these in to the budget bureau whose experts then sat down with them and went over the plans and figures to reduce the costs. The President had a say about all this.

When the President and the budget bureau were satisfied they had the costs as low as possible, the President wrote his explanation to go with the figures. All this was then printed by the government printing office.

Once Congress gets the budget, it begins hearings, calling in the various government officials who put the budget together, to question them in the hope of cutting the expenses further.

This questioning is done through the House and Senate appropriations committees. The questions and answers fill many more fat volumes all this questioning takes months.

When the committees are satisfied they have cut the budget as much as possible, they turn the whole thing over to both houses to vote the money, which may not be before next summer.

Rescuers Are Marooned Also

Mountain Home, Idaho, Jan. 21 (AP)—Four men who struggled through deep snow to a remote mine last week to rescue an ailing woman and her small son now are marooned in the area.

Mrs. Gene Jack and her son were safe and sound in Boise today after spending a week snow-bound in a gold mining camp in the Sawtooth Mountains, 21 miles from Rocky Bar. An Air Force unit from McChord Field, near Tacoma, Wash., directed the rescue.

Yesterday the Air Force flew the C-54s and the helicopter back to McChord Field to join the search for a missing B-18, leaving the four men stranded in snow-bound Rocky Bar.

Air Force officials said attempts would be made to have the State Aeronautical Department or Civil Air Patrol take over the task of getting the men out.

MacArthur's Pilot Quits the Airforce

New York Jan. 21 (AP)—Lt. Col. Arthur G. Douglas, MacArthur's pilot, has resigned from the U. S. Air Force to take a position with a distilling company.

MacArthur as an aide, disrespected yesterday he has resigned from the general home from last spring.

To Air Trouble at Weight Stations

Little Rock, Jan. 21 (AP)—A full investigation of Arkansas' truck weight stations at border entry points will be made by State Revenue Commissioner Carl Parker.

Parker said Saturday that he would investigate the stations following a complaint from highway Director Glen Fullerton. Fullerton asked that personnel at the West Memphis station be dismissed, and called the situation "a disgrace to Arkansas."

Cab Driver Has Quiet a Show

New York Jan. 21 (AP)—Mink and calico ribbon shoulders last night at the professional singing debut of taxi cab driver Barney Varian at Carnegie Recital Hall.

The American-American brought down the house as he sang selections from Mozart, Mendelssohn, Brahms and Tchaikovsky.

True, it was a small house. The recital hall seats only 299 compared with the Carnegie auditorium next door which seats about 3,000.

But the handsome 31-year-old baritone's solo debut had much of the excitement of a big-time Manhattan first night.

He arrived an hour before the concert carrying a brief case full of tickets and programs.

He finished the recital himself. While photographers made pictures of him climbing in and out of a taxicab, a crowd gathered on 54th Street the street of high-brow music, art, and fashion.

In the lobby Varian's baritone sang a duet with a woman in a dark coat. "Kiss him, Mrs. H." yelled a photographer.

The woman was wealthy Mrs. Betty Henderson who a few years ago won attention by placing a leg

PRESCOTT NEWS

Saturday evening Jan. 19th, the Prescott Carley Wolves football team, were honored with a banquet by the Athletic Committee of the Prescott High School in the High School lunch room.

J. L. Smith, Sup't. of the Prescott schools, was master of ceremonies.

Tracy, formerly, member of the School Board, and a former Carley Wolf, gave the invocation.

Mr. Smith introduced members of the School Board and then gave and the readers and their wives.

Joe C. Gray, president of the board, introduced the Carley Wolves who will graduate this year. He also presented football jackets to 12 lettermen, and to George Haynes, captain of the team.

A certificate which entitles him to a basketball 6 junior lettermen received sweaters, and the two captains, jackets. Two junior lettermen received gold footballs. The coaches were given sweaters.

Thomas Langley sang two numbers, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Smoke Get In Your Eyes." She was accompanied by Sue Clark at the piano.

Mr. Paul Grayson, former Carley Wolf, was a student at Southern State college, Magnolia, was introduced by Mr. Smith, and presented to the school the trophy he won for being Arkansas' line man of the Year, L. B. Andrews. He appeared on stage in a self-proclaimed and sang songs from operas, artistic songs, and some old standards like the Zedga Boat.

There was the sound of solid applause. Barth nodded his thanks to Dr. Fancher and rose to introduce the Roman Catholic priest, Father Kelly, whose long family figure moved forward deliberately in acknowledgement of Barth's words. He addressed himself with ease to his audience, his bright glance running constantly from one face to another in a continuing challenge to them to heed him.

"It is stupid," he declared with warmth, "to tell ourselves that only moral values can ultimately prevail, and at the same time scheme to get by with underhanded maneuverings. We find at the United Nations gatherings, that do we not, I wonder, find class where first? Where does class begin? I'll tell you where it begins. It begins in our homes, in schools, and our churches."

He paused. "In view of the world scene," he went on, "our domestic national differences are of no importance. Our common duties are the important thing. And what are they? Do you even know what they should be? Listen, then!" He leaned forward and shook a bony finger at his listeners. "They should be to organize an Army of the Lord for service in the field of ordinary living. And I mean, ordinary living. To let God speak to us about our everyday affairs. To let Him rule the small decisions we must make in our family matters, in our educational institutions, and in the government of our town."

He paused again. "But I ask you if we have? If we do? If we are ever going to? If we are, it is time to begin."

He returned to his seat. Rabbi Levitt came next. He was a short dark man with a fiery eye and a repressed but eloquent manner of speaking.

He talked of the contradictions in our culture today, these contradictions which make it so difficult to do as Father Kelly suggested and let God rule in our ordinary lives. He spoke of the way competition, on which democracy is built, condones the breaking of the moral laws given us by Moses—not to lie, not to steal, not to covet. Of the way we profess a desire for peace yet are unwilling to make any real effort to achieve that peace if it costs too much in dollars or in votes. Of the way the Sabbath declaration of the Brotherhood of Man is denied on weekdays by the fight for survival or for the possession of greater riches than we already have. Of the way we quote those great leaders who have gone before us—Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson—yet continue to make expedient political deals.

Barth, sitting there listening and looking out over the sea of faces before him, thought how like a play a gathering like this could be. Should be. A gradual development. A slow unfolding to a climax. And as long as it was, an audience would stay with it, following from point to point, with interest and attention. Had they followed? He checked the progress made in swift and silent review. The prayer for an international patriotism based on the principles of Christianity which would lead to peace.

Now the time had come for another son before they grew restless. Rising, Barth said, "Shall we sing 'America, the Beautiful'?" And will our school orchestra lead us in that great hymn as it did before?"
